SUNNY JIM CLABBY IN AUSTRALIA

The Clever Boxer, Who Claims Norwich, as His Home is Doing Well Out On the Big Island, Where the Game is

The Sidney Sportsmanship of Sidney, Australia, classes Jimmy Clabby, former local boy as one of the cleverest in the boxing game, and the fans in Austrialia call him Sunny Jim, as he is always smiling and it is considered the smile that made him famous. The following is an extract from the Sidney Sportsmanship:

Goorty has shown us, ever since he came here at the expense of Dave Smith whom he knocked out twice, in half a round and the tenth round, he has a punch in either hand is like a kick from a horse; while his back record shows that he can land it, too, for it holds quite a number of the coveted "K's."

They had met twice before, so that they were wise to each other's methods. These bouts were limited to a ten-rounder at Denver, Colorado, on May 2, 1913, which the referee declared was a draw, and 12 rounds, on June 13 of the same year, at Butte, Montana, when the referee awarded a verdict on points to Clabby, who had been knocked down a couple or three times in the first round, but who, in the official eye, had made up enough points afterwards to hold a winning margin at the end. This can easily be recognized to have been probably a correct view, for it often so occurs in Queensbury boxing. We had a remarkable instance of this here in Sydney no later than February last, when Sid Sullivan
